SAM SMALL WILL DELIVER HIS FAMOUS LECTURE HERE

Thursday evening at 8 p. m in the Christian church of Monessen, Dr. Sam W. Small of Georgia, one of the most noted speakers and orators in the country, will deliver an address on "America's Third Emancipation." As a veteran of the Civil and Spanish-American wars, and wearing a service pin on which appears three stars, Dr. Small is eminently qualified to speak. The meeting will be in the nature of a Patriotic-Prohibition rally, and it is expected that the speaker will give a forceful presentation.

Sam Small has lived a life crowded with experiences and incidents that rarely come to an individual Beginning as private secretary to ex-presid Andrew Johnson, when a yo [illegible] ttorney in Tennessee. Dr [illegible] has been in public life for [illegible] half a century As editor of [illegible] Atlanta Constitutional and as the author of several books, he has won a reputation a a writer that places him among the [illegible] ment man of the South. As a [illegible] in the Confederate army, and then as a participant in the Spanish-American war, Dr. Small came in contract with those things which every soldier knows and realizes. His three sons have been and are at the present time in the service of their country, two of them in active service on the front in France, so that he has been and is in personal touch with conditions in the present war.

As a personal friend of President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo, Dr. Small has been in close touch with the administration at Washington, and therefore speaks with some degree of authority His humor and his clear logical way of presenting a subject has made him a popular speaker on the Chautauqua platform and forums, and there is perhaps today no public speaker in the country who attracts larger audiences in a public address. In the past twenty-five years he has made many speeches and because of his activities for temperance legistlation has won a host of warm friends. At the present time he is speaking almost entirely in Pennsylvania, has been heard from the church pulpits and platforms in most of the large cities. His coming to Monessen will undoubtedly mean a large hearing with a strong and clear cut address

CHARLEROI HEALTH OFFICER PUTS BAN ON DAIRY

A dairy which has been in operation on the old Speers farm in Speers borough, and operated by Kakiniks & Co., a Monessen firm, has been prohibited from doing business in Charleroi by Health Officer Darby, says the Charleroi Mail. The health authorities took this step as a measure of safety for the citizens of the community because of the unsanitary conditions which prevail about the premises

The first intimation as to conditions existing at this dairy came to the local officer about six weeks ago, but health conditions in the borough at that time made it impossible for him to take any action A few days ago he receive a letter from a resident of the Speers borough, who complained not only of the unsanitary conditions prevailing but likewise of the actions of those who were in charge of the premises It was said these men of whom there are four or five occupying the premises, spend their Sundays in shooting firearms, although it is said none of them are American citizens. Moreover, it is said, they had made threats agaınt some of the people of the neighborhood.

Mr. Darby made a preliminary investigation and finding conditions so bad he immediatey notified the manager that no more milk from that dairy could be delivered in Charleroi.

A further inspection of the premises revealed the fact that fourteen cows are kept in a stable without either light or ventilation; that three animals are kept in the kitchen of the house occupied by the attendants, which is also a storehouse for feed and hay, even the bed rooms being filied with these condiions. The stable in which the horses are kept is also overcrowded, although the animals appeared to be in good condition.

There are no arrangements about the place for taking care of the milk, no hot water for scalding cans after use as required by law; in fact the accommodation for taking care of the product of the dairy are of the most primitive character, while the sanitary conditions are such that they would be immediately condemned by any state inspector that might visit the place.

There will be no lessening of activities by the National Tuberculosis Association through this arrangement, as the Red Cross War Council has appropriated $2,500,000 for anti-tuberculosis work in 1919 in lieu of the money that ordinarily would be raised by a Christmas Seal Campaign. However, every person joining the Red Cross during the Red Cross Christmas Roll Call will be awarded ten seals to be used as heretofore.

AID OF WAITRESS

By IRA E. ROGERS.

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

While Barbara waited for her order she glanced shyly at the young man in khaki sitting opposite her at the table, and her blue eyes beamed approval. She had never seen a more kindly or intelligent face, she told herself, and she knew he would be brave, too, when the occasion should arise. She began to wish she knew him.

The waitress had been bustling about the table, and Barbara, looking down suddenly, noted to her surprise that a plate containing two orders of rolls had been set directly between her place and that of the young man. When the full significance of this struck her she became horrified. It was evident that the waitress thought that they had come in together. Oh, if she could only catch her eye! But the busy little waitress seemed to look at everyone but her. Why hadn't she gone to the place where she usually went at night and not ventured into this restaurant? The young man was absorbed in a paper and apparently had not noticed the waitress' mistake.

When hours had passed, according to Barbara's feelings, the two orders were brought in and placed before the young man. He looked up with a start; but it was only a fraction of a minute that surprise mastered him. Then he started in to serve Barbara as if it were an every-day occurrence.

"It's best to pretend we came together," he said in a low voice, after the waitress had hurried away to other patrons.

Barbara acquiesced shyly. After a few moments her diffidence wore away and she suddenly found herself chatting with the young soldier in the most unconventional way. She felt a twinge of regret when the dinner was over and they had to go their separate ways. He had taken no advantage of their strange meeting, and they parted as they had met, strangers.

In the days that followed Barbara thought much about the young man in khaki. His kindly dark eyes seemed to follow her wherever she went, and she often caught herself scrutinizing a crowd with a hope that she might see him again. She had not entered the restaurant where they had met since that night. Although she had passed it many times she did not have the courage to enter.

One evening, about a month later, Barbara decided to go to see Grace Lincoln, a girl acquaintance, who lived out of town. In the course of the evening she related her strange experience, and when she had finished Grace laughed immoderately, a great deal more than the occasion would seem to warrant.

Before Barbara took her leave her friend said, with a twinkle in her eye, "I want you to come out next Tuesday night. My cousin from Wilton is coming to visit us for two or three days, and I would like to have you meet him. I'm sure you'll like him. You'll come, won't you?"

Barbara promised that she would come. Ordinarily she would have gone home delighted, but now she did not feel pleased at the prospect of meeting Grace's cousin. What did she care about seeing him?

When Tuesday evening came she took a train for her friend's house, and it was a little before eight when she arrived there. Grace came to the door in answer to her ring, meeting her with a burst of delight. "He's come, Barbara; and I know you'll like him."

Barbara smiled unconcernedly. As they entered the living room a tall figure in khaki who had been sitting before the open fire rose and came forward. The girl could hardly believe her own eyes. She was ashamed of herself, for she was blushing furiously as Grace introduced her to her cousin; but Richard Young soon put her at her ease and it was not long before she was chatting with him as she had at the restaurant. He did not once allude to their former meeting, and for this she was very grateful. Just before she left Grace drew her aside a moment.

"Richard has been trying to find you ever since that night," she said. "He told me all about it—he and I have always been like brother and sister. I never had an idea that you were the girl until last week when you were out. I said you would like him," she added, with a roguish glance, "and by the way things look I guess—"

"He's very pleasant," broke in Barbara, her face burning with blushes. Grace said nothing more but smiled knowingly.

Barbara was pleased when Richard Young offered to see her to the train, and as they walked along together she felt as if she had always known him.

"I'm going to call on you tomorrow evening," he announced boldly as the train rumbled into the station. "Provided, of course, that you want me to come."

"Yes—I want you to come," Barbara shyly answered him.

The next evening Richard told her that he had been called, and that he expected to go away the following week.

"When I come back I want someone I know to be waiting for me. Do you think she will, Barbara?"

And Barbara answered softly, "I know she will, Richard."

KEPT PLEDGE TO SEND BREAD

American Nation Maintained Allied Loaf Through Self-Denial at Home Table.

AVERTED EUROPEAN DESPAIR.

With Military Demands Upon Ocean Shipping Relieved, World Is Able to Return to Normal White Wheat Bread.

Since the advent of the latest wheat crop the only limitation upon American exports to Europe has been the shortage of shipping. Between July 1 and October 10 we shipped 65,980 305 bushels. If this rate should continue until the end of the fiscal year we will have furnished the Allies with more than 237,500,000 bushels of wheat and flour in terms of wheat.

The result of increased production and conservation efforts in the United States has been that with the cessation of hostilities we are able to return to a normal wheat diet. Supplies that have accumulated in Australia, Argentine and other hitherto inaccessible markets may be tapped by ships released from transport service, and European demand for American wheat probably will not exceed our normal surplus. There is wheat enough available to have a white loaf at the common table.

But last year the tale was different. Only by the greatest possible saving and sacrifice were we able to keep a steady stream of wheat and flour moving across the sea. We found ourselves at the beginning of the harvest year with an unusually short crop. Even the most optimistic statisticians figured that we had a bare surplus of 20,000,000 bushels. And yet Europe was facing the probability of a bread famine—and in Europe bread is by far the most important article in the diet.

All of this surplus had left the country early in the fall. By the first of the year we had managed to ship a little more than 50,000,000 bushels by practicing the utmost economy at home—by wheatless days, wheatless meals, heavy substitution of other cereals and by sacrifice at almost every meal throughout the country.

In January the late Lord Rhondda, then British Food Controller, cabled that only if we sent an additional 75,000,000 bushels before July 1 could he take the responsibility of assuring his people that they would be fed.

The response of the American people was 85,000,000 bushels safely delivered overseas between January 1 and July 1. Out of a harvest which gave us only 20,000,000 bushels surplus we actually shipped 141,000,000 bushels.

Thus did America fulfill her pledge that the Allied bread rations could be maintained, and already the American people are demonstrating that, with an awakened war conscience, last year's figures will be bettered.

—The diet during and after influenza Horlick's Malted Milk, nourishing, digestible.

Food control made sure every from shortage, kept the rein on food prices, gave the nation's full strength exercise.

Starvation by Germany challenged all the world, food conservation in America answered the challenge.

Food conservation in America has been the triumph of individual devotion to the national cause.

How many times in the past few months have you found it necessary to say

"Well, now we have had those goods on the road for 10 days or more they ought to be in any time now. You know it's awfully hard to get any through these days," etc., etc.

Five minutes later that same customer may come out of "Bill Pep's" place with the very articles you ordered, but didn't have.

Don't let them stray. Good customers are hard to get—harder to hold. More money is invested in goods—smaller margin than at any time since you entered business.

Bill Pep's goods were delivered to Jos. Samuels this morning and he received them this afternoon. What do you say? Just tell the salesman—"Send 'em by Messenger.

There's no use suffering from the awful agony of lame back. Don't wait till it "passes off." It only comes back. Find the cause and stop it. PROVED SPIRIT OF DEMOCRACY

Voluntary Basis of Food Saving Showed Heart of America Beat True for Freedom.

To the voluntary service and sacrifice of the American people must be attributed the continued health, strength and morale of the Allied armies and the civil populace.

Upon this spirit of service and sacrifice will depend Europe's fate in the months to come. In the past year we have carried out an export program, the magnitude of which is almost beyond comprehension. But with the new demands that have come, with the liberation of nations freed from German oppression, our exports must be almost doubled. Instead of 11,820,000 tons, we must ship twenty million tons of food to Europe in the coming year—as much as can be pushed through our ports.

If the Allies had not been fed by America, it would have been impossible for them to maintain their defense against Germany.

Meeting this world need on a purely voluntary basis, the American people have conclusively proved that democracy is a success and that in time of need it will rise to its own defense.

If there were no other accomplishment to its credit the very fact that it has shown the strength of democracy has in itself more than justified the existence of the Food Administration in the eyes of the world.

Less than four months after the United States declared war the United States Food Administrator expressed his determination to meet America's food problem on a basis of voluntary action and reiterated his confidence that awakened democracy would prove irresistible.

"Many thinking Americans," said Mr. Hoover, "and the whole world have been watching anxiously the last four months in the fear that democratic America could not organize to meet autocratic Germany. [illegible] has been confident that it can be done. Didn't Relish Two Years of Starvation

I have delayed writing to see if my relief was permanent; can say that I am feeling fine. Three doctors told me I had ulcers of the stomach and no medicine would help me, but your Mayr's Wonderful Remedy has done so. I am now a well man again after two years of starvation and suffering" It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

WHAT WILL HE THINK IF WE FAIL?
BUY W.S.S.

Food control in America held the price of breadstuffs steady, prevented vicious speculation and extortion and preserved tranquillity at home

In no other nation is there so willing a sense of voluntary self sacrifice as in America—that was shown in the abstinence from wheat.

Find more wheat, it came; more pork, it came, save sugar, it was done. So Americans answered the challenge of German starvation.

Good will rules the new world as fear governed the old world. Through sharing food America helps make the whole world kin.
